Instructions: Read the following article about El Palacio Real in Madrid. Then, answer the questions that follow!

The Palacio Real or Royal Palace is the largest and certainly one of the most impressive palaces in Europe. It has more than 2000 luxuriously decorated rooms, 50 of which can be visited. It is located on the east of Madrid's historic center, within walking distance of the Plaza de España.

Royal Palace

History

Soon after the Royal Fortress (El Alcazár) burned down on Christmas Eve of 1734, King Philips V wanted to replace the fortress by a palace, this time built from limestone and granite to make it fireproof. Construction of the new palace started in 1738. Twenty-six years and three kings later, the huge palace, was completed. It would take another 100 years before all the rooms were decorated.

The Palace

Visitors enter the Palace via the large Plaza de la Armería. Some of the sumptuous rooms accessible to visitors are the dining room, the Sala de Porcelana (Porcelain room) and the Salón del Trono (Throne room) with red velvet walls. The palace also includes the Arméria Real, the royal armory collection. It contains a beautiful collection of armory, including King Charles V's armour suit.

Royal Residence

King Carlos III, son of King Philips V moved into the new palace in 1764. The Palacio Real would be the main residence of the Spanish kings until 1931, when king Alfonso XIII went into exile after republicans had won the elections and demanded him to step down. Today the royal family lives in the small Zarzuela Palace, a former hunting lodge outside Madrid. The Royal Palace is still used for official ceremonies and receptions. The Palace is bordered on the east by the Campo del Moro, a large park that goes uphill from the Rio Manzanares.

Plaza Oriente

In front of the Palace is the Plaza Oriente, a beautiful square with an equestrian statue of Philips IV. The Royal Palace originally bore the same name as the square, Palacio Oriente, or East Palace. Statues of queens are all over the square. The intention was to put these statues on top of the palace but they were too heavy, so they were placed on the square in front of the palace instead.
